How the COVID-19 crisis is affecting your customers

Americans are reacting to COVID-19 in a variety of ways, which can make it challenging for business owners to respond and plan ahead. We’ve compiled research and data to help you start thinking about whether you need to adapt your business, and how.

What they’re thinking:

9 in 10 Americans are following COVID-19 news coverage, but...1
7 in 10 say they need to take breaks because it’s emotionally draining.3
70% of people want brands to boost positivity.3

Action: Try to share positive stories, like how you’re supporting your employees or ways you’re helping your community.

What they’re doing:

Americans are relying on the internet to stay connected.
90% say it’s important or essential.2
87% year over year jump in downloads of video conferencing apps.2

But not everything is digital.
75% of people are still visiting stores for essentials.8
25% are trying to shop more at locally owned stores.4

Action: Prioritize a digital strategy for your business, but don’t forget to reach out to customers in person.

How they’re spending:

9 in 10 Americans are stressed about money.6
2 in 5 are reducing expenses.9

Action: Because your customers may be more likely to shop discount offerings, consider promotional sales or coupons.

They may make long-term changes:

COVID-19 is causing Americans to rethink how they work and live their lives.
39% of urbanites are thinking of leaving the city.10
75% of people want the option to keep working remotely.11
17% of people plan to use their cars more, having grown wary of public transport.12

Action: If your business is in a city and has previously relied on foot traffic, now is the time to think about how your business can adapt and become more digital.

---

About seven-in-ten U.S. adults say they need to take breaks from COVID-19 news, Pew, April 29, 2020

7 in 10 Americans say the internet has been essential during coronavirus outbreak, Pew, April 30, 2020

Videoconferencing apps surge from coronavirus impact, App Annie, March 2020

COVID-19 is significantly altering consumer behavior and plans post crisis, IBM, May 2020

Coronavirus may prompt migration out of American Cities, The Harris Poll, May 2020

---

Information and views provided are general in nature and are not legal, tax, or investment advice. Wells Fargo makes no warranties as to accuracy or completeness of information, including but not limited to information provided by third parties; does not endorse any non-Wells Fargo companies, products, or services described here; and takes no liability for your use of this information. Information and suggestions regarding business risk management and safeguards do not necessarily represent Wells Fargo’s business practices or experience. Please contact your own legal, tax, or financial advisors regarding your specific business needs before taking any action based upon this information.